Careers & Jobs

A career in Freight and Logistics

What is Freight and Logistics?

The Freight and Logistics sector plays an essential role in Australia's economy.

Services include road, rail, sea, and air transportation. It also includes relevant support services like warehousing, storage, freight forwarding and customs brokerage.

Freight and logistics apply to both domestic and international trade.

The logistics industry is responsible for producing, obtaining and distributing products and goods, then getting those supplies to the right places, and in the quantities required.

The processes involved with Freight and Logistics

The industry is really diverse, there are six main areas:

1. Sourcing
2. Transportation (this is a classed as a separate industry, but they're hugely intertwined)
3. Storage
4. Production
5. Later stage storage
6. Distribution

Some of the jobs within this sector

Because it's such a big sector, there are lots of career options to consider. Here are just a few examples:

- Logistics Coordinator
- Customs Manager
- Supply Chain Coordinator
- Logistics Manager
- Freight Co-ordinator
- Transport Manager
- Transport Planner
- Operations Manager

- Warehouse Manager
- Distribution Manager
- Routing/Scheduling Clerk
- Engineering and maintenance crew
- Drivers, captains and pilots
- Insurance officers
- Legal representatives
- Brokers

Early Entry Schemes | Apply now

Get an offer for university before you've taken a final exam

Year 12 can be stressful, but the 2020 cohort have probably experienced more than their fair share due to the coronavirus pandemic.

The good news is that everyone understands your pain. Schools, education departments, tertiary admission centres, universities and other tertiary education providers – they're all working hard to make sure that you won't be unfairly disadvantaged because of it.

There are lots of early entry schemes that you could be eligible to apply for; check out our Early Entry Guide and our alternative pathways database for more information.

We'll also keep you posted in our weekly news if more programs crop up over the next few months.

Reduce your year-end stress, apply for early entry to university

Receiving an early offer has a few benefits to consider:

- Get applications out of the way sooner
- Leave yourself more time later in the year to focus on your studies and revision
- Enjoy the peace of mind that could come with your early offer
- Helps you to plan your future in more detail e.g. finances and accommodation

You can read more about the benefits of early entry and conditional offers here.

If you weren't already considering applying for an early offer before school shut-downs, maybe you could now.

Apply for early entry programs NOW

Our Early Entry Guide 2021 has recently been updated with new programs, adjusted key dates and revised eligibility or application requirements.

Lots of the early entry schemes are already open for applications, if not they're opening soon. So, if you'd like to apply or you need to do a little research, now is the time.

There are more early offer programs than ever

Early entry schemes are becoming more widespread amongst the alternative pathways offered by universities.

Each uni designs its own scheme, which unfortunately means application systems and requirements will vary.

So it's important that you read all the eligibility requirements, understand the application process, and stick to the key dates listed for each individual program. We have listed all the important information and links to specific pages in our Early Entry Guide to get you started.

Who is eligible to apply for early entry schemes?

Some programs are for gifted students, but not all. If you're not amongst the top academic achievers in your cohort, don't be discouraged.

- Academic merit
- Elite athletes and performers
- Future leaders recognised by your school
- Students who've thrown themselves in to community engagement and volunteering
- Rural or remote applicants
- People who've experienced disadvantage

These are just some of the categories that could make you eligible to apply.

New categories for 2020

To ease any disadvantage created by COVID 19, you might find there are new opportunities being created too.

Here's a few of the universities who have already reacted:

Edith Cowan University have created a new early offer program based on your predicted ATAR from your most recent school results.

Curtin University's ATAR entry scheme is also new for 2020. You can apply now through TISC, based on your predicted ATAR or Year 11 results supplied by your school. You could receive an offer within 7 days, and they'll even refund your TISC fee.

The University of Western Australia are now offering their Predicted ATAR Entry scheme. Applications are open now. Again, you could be receiving a conditional offer within 7 days of submitting your completed application through UWA. Offers are based on your predicted ATAR or latest school reports.

The University of Adelaide's Year 11 Results entry pathway is also new for 2020. Launched in response to COVID 19, you could secure a conditional offer in September 2020 based on your Year 11 results from 2019.

University of Canberra are preparing to make early offers through a special admissions round on 13 August 2020. Your school must be registered to participate in the UC Early Offer Round, then you'll need to complete a UAC application and submit a separate SRS application by 5 July.

University of Technology Sydney will be opening for applications in July 2020, which is earlier than usual. You'll be able to apply for their existing access schemes then too. They're also working on additional admission schemes for 2020 school leavers, to be announced soon.

Macquarie have extended the application closing dates for their Schools Recommendation Scheme and Leaders and Achievers Scheme. Both are open for applications now. They plan on "considering a student's Year 11 results, along with the support of their school or their contribution to the community", in order to "make an informed judgement and an early offer that will help alleviate any anxiety around the HSC and ATAR."

The University of Notre Dame have also made some changes to their Early Offer program by using benchmark ATAR scores based on your Year 11 school reports.

Got questions about Early Entry?

If you still have questions about early entry, reading about some of the frequently asked questions and the answers could help.

You could also reach out to the universities if you've got additional queries about specific programs.

Don't forget that if you're not eligible to apply for any of the schemes right now because:

- You don't meet the eligibility criteria
- The university you'd like to apply for doesn't offer early entry

Or perhaps you apply and aren't offered a conditional or guaranteed place....

It's not the end of the world and certainly not the end of your university dreams.

You can still apply for your preferred university and courses later in the year; there are a few main offer rounds you could be successful in.

There are also alternative pathways to explore that could get you into the course you'd like. Just don't give up.

Your Road to Bond in 2021

To support Year 12 students who may have been disadvantaged by COVID-19, Bond University is making some changes to their admissions process.

You can now apply to Bond based on your Year 11 and Semester 1 Year 12 results. As long as you meet the entry requirements, you will receive a conditional offer to study at Bond. Once you finish Year 12, your offer becomes unconditional.

These new entry requirements apply to applicants from across Australia, not just in Queensland.

Please note, Bond's Medical Program is excluded from these revised entry requirements.

You can apply direct to Bond at any time using their online application portal.

Find out more and apply here: <https://bond.edu.au/future-students/study-bond/how-apply/undergraduate-admissions-criteria/2021-year-12-entry>

National Reconciliation Week 2020

National Reconciliation Week in Australia

National Reconciliation Week (NRW) is held each year between 27 May and 3 June.

It's purpose is to acknowledge and commemorate the hardships and milestones experienced by Australia's Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people. To inspire and to help the Australian nation with moving forward.

“build relationships and communities that value Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, histories, cultures, and futures” – Reconciliation Australia

The dates are important

NRW marks two historically significant dates.

May 27 represents the anniversary of the 1967 referendum, when Australians voted to remove clauses in the Australian Constitution that discriminated against Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.

Whilst June 3, was the date in 1992 when the Mabo decision was made. The High Court of Australia ruled that native title was to be recognised for the first time. This was a turning point in history for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples since the arrival of the British. It acknowledges their rights as well as their unique connection to the land.

In This Together

This year NRW will be celebrated entirely online and the theme is “in this together”.

You’re encouraged, as are all Australians, to take part by reflecting on how you can play a role in the journey towards reconciliation and unification.

“When we come together to build mutual respect and understanding, we shape a better future for all Australians.” – Karen Mundine

The Job Maker Plan and you

Rebooting Australia’s economy

You might have heard on the news over the last few days about Scott Morrison’s latest announcements regarding the Job Maker Plan.

But, perhaps you’re not sure what it’s all about and how it could affect you.

Well, in short it could make for a brighter future for school leavers, especially those who’d like to get VET qualifications.

What is the Job Maker Plan?

The Job Maker Plan is a potential solution to the economic impacts of COVID 19.

“The way to ensure people are employed moving forward” – Scott Morrison

At the moment unemployment figures and debt levels are high.

But the immediate focus on restoring jobs that have been lost, as well as pledging to create more and better opportunities for young people in the future, is very positive.

Mr Morrison is hoping the new strategy could restore our country’s economic success sooner rather than later. Although it’s already a 3 to 5-year plan.

You can watch Scott Morrison talk about the Job Maker Plan here.

How could the Job Maker Plan affect you?

If you’re thinking about studying a VET qualification, there’s good news.

“I’m very committed to investing more, in a better system,” -Scott Morrison

It’s possible that funding above the current $1.5 billion could be provided to the skills and training sector. Which in turn could create even more courses, traineeship and apprenticeship positions. Potentially it could one day translate as more financial assistance and subsidies too (but that’s speculation for now).

The entire VET system may be overhauled so it's not as "complex", "clunky" or "unresponsive". "It is no wonder when faced with this, many potential students' default to the university system, even if their career could be best enhanced through vocational education."

A VET system that's easier to navigate and understand could make it easier and less overwhelming for you and other young Australians. Ultimately allowing you to find the best qualifications to get your career started sooner.

In addition, course prices and quality could be standardised between states, territories and training providers. That could make opportunities in VET fairer and better for everyone.

It's good news

Although it's early days and as Mr Morrison himself said "there's no guarantees", the Job Maker Plan could help you find employment more easily after high school.

If you are interested in vocational education and training (VET), you can find out more about it on our dedicated page.

How to become a Fashion Stylist

What do Fashion Stylists do?

Fashion stylists provide fashion advice. They may be responsible for choosing and co-ordinating clothes for models on photo shoots, or actors in tv and film productions.

Or, as a Fashion stylist you might be hired by individuals to create a wardrobe that flatters them and suits their lifestyle and professional needs. You might also be tasked with picking out props and accessories that complete an overall look.

If you are creative with an eye for detail, have fantastic listening and people skills, then a career as a fashion stylist could tick all your boxes.

About you:

- Artistic with innate colour and design sense
- A tactful, honest communicator with great negotiating and persuasive skills
- Motivated, organised, team worker who thrives under pressure

The job:

- Advise and inspire individuals and creative teams about what styles will work
- Select and source the right clothing and accessories, ensure they're fit for purpose and perfect for your client's requirements

- Solve problems that might arise, work to tight deadlines and within strict budgets. Keep your clients happy

If you'd like to be competitive in this field, you should get as much work experience as possible, be prepared to move and travel a lot, and keep your knowledge up to date.

How to become a Fashion Stylist in Australia

A degree isn't essential for entry to this career, but some formal training is often preferred by employers and clients.

Step 1 – Study English, Maths and any creative classes that inspire you at high school. Business studies could also be useful.

Step 2 – Get relevant work experience and immerse yourself in all aspects of the fashion world.

Step 3 – Choose and complete any qualifications. Consider VET pathways. Look for opportunities with hands-on, industry experience. Examples include:

Certificate III in Applied Fashion Design and Technology from a registered training organisation (RTO)

Diploma of Fashion Styling at RMIT

Bachelor of Design in Fashion and Textiles at UTS

Combined Bachelor of Business/Bachelor of Design \(Fashion\) at QUT

Step 4 – Find an internship or mentor, gain further work experience. Make useful industry contacts and keep an up to date portfolio of your works.

Step 5 – Market yourself, continually build on your network and reputation. Make sure you stay on trend always.
